SECTIONAL DOORS

Sectional doors are the doors formed by horizontal panels stacked and assembled one another and opened and closed by upward movement in vertical rails.

Being insulated, silent and durable, these doors are frequently preferred in industry for their motor-driven or manually-operated alternatives and their advantages including aesthetic look and functionality.

They can be manufactured from steel, aluminum, stainless steel or complete glass. Upon request, an additional door can be installed for passage of staff.

It offers suitable options for your premises with standard, high, low and guillotine bedding alternatives.
